Us & Them: Korean Indie Rock in a K-Pop World

Associate Professor Stephen Epstein is the Director of the Asian Languages and Cultures Programme at Victoria University of Wellington in New Zealand, and served as the 2013-14 President of the New Zealand Asian Studies Society. He has published widely on contemporary Korean society, literature and popular culture and translated numerous pieces of Korean and Indonesian fiction, including the novels Who Ate Up All The Shinga? by Park Wan-suh (Columbia University Press, 2009) and The Long Road by Kim In-suk (MerwinAsia, 2010) and the short story collection Apple and Knife by Intan Paramaditha (Harvill Secker, 2018). He has also co-produced two documentaries on the Korean indie music scene, Us & Them: Korean Indie Rock in a K-pop world (2014) and Our Nation: A Korean Punk Rock Community (2002) and co-edited Complicated Currents: Media Flows, Soft Power and East Asia (Monash University Publications, 2010) and The Korean Wave: A Sourcebook with Yun Mi Hwang (Academy of Korean Studies Press, 2016). His volume Popular Culture and the Transformation of Japan-Korea Relations (co-edited with Rumi Sakamoto) is forthcoming with Routledge in 2020.
